Report

This year's Martineau's House Tennis Cup was a doubles tournament which was played over two weeks, where every House played each other in a round robin format.

After the first week it was a wide open competition with any of four Houses still in the running for the top spot. There were some really good rallies throughout the many sets and it was a pleasure to watch the high standard of tennis being played on the Aldenham courts. It eventually came down to the result of the final match to sort out the top three places.

Rob Krausher (Elliott) and Amy Flood (Swaine) were the best individual talent on offer but in the doubles competition they could only manage second and third positions respectively. The Griffin pairing of Louis Alterman and Charlie Waller were the worthy winners and passed through the competition without losing a set against any other House. They played well as a team and remained positive with each other at all times; a lesson to us all!

Overall, it was a wonderful Cup Competition played in the best atmosphere with much House Spirit on show. Well done to all thirteen players involved.
