Introduction

Aldenham School is committed to creating an environment where exemplary behaviour is at the heart of productive learning. Everyone is expected to maintain the highest standards of personal conduct, to accept responsibility for their behaviour and encourage others to do the same.

Aldenham promotes a culture of mutual respect where everyone is treated as an individual which allows each person to thrive and develop a sense of self-worth. As an individual, everyone is part of a larger group: a year group in a house, the house itself, a class, a team and the School community. All Aldenhamians should think of others at least as much as they do of themselves, giving as well as receiving, including all, trusting others, being tolerant of those who have different views and habits, respecting all around as individuals and caring about them, and always being prepared to help when needed. With these aims in mind, this policy guides staff to teach self-regulation, not blind compliance. It is recognised that individualised responses may be appropriate when a pupil has educational or mental health needs, while also recognising that clear consistent boundaries within a culture of respect support the development of resilience, self-management and promote good mental health.

This policy applies to all pupils when they are on the School premises, in the care of the School or otherwise representing the School (e.g. when wearing school uniform or on journeys to and from School). This also applies to online activities associated with the School. It includes conduct that may occur away from School that affects the welfare of members of the School community or which brings the School into disrepute.

Aims and Objectives

- To have high expectations of the pupils with regards to behaviour and to ensure that all pupils work to the best of their ability.
- To foster good relationships between staff and pupils by establishing and maintaining an atmosphere of mutual respect.
- To maintain a community which is tolerant and teaches service to others.
- To establish a clearly defined hierarchy of responses to inappropriate behaviour.
- To comply with the School's legal duties under the Equality Act 2010, in respect of Safeguarding and in respect of pupils with Special Education Needs and Disabilities (SEND).

In summary, we are aiming for our three key stakeholders (staff, pupils and parents/guardians) to conduct themselves according to the table below:

Staff	Pupils	Parents/Guardians
To lead by example; to treat pupils with respect and kindness at all times. To set the tone by their dress and demeanour around School.	To respect, support and care for each other and their teachers; listening to others and respecting their opinions.	To be aware of and support Aldenham's values and expectations.
To encourage the aims and values of the School and local community.	To attend School regularly, on time, ready and fully equipped to learn and take part in school activities; to do their best in all they do.	To ensure that pupils come to School regularly and on time, with the right equipment and wearing full school uniform
To be consistent in language, response, follow up and consequences, being fair and equitable to all pupils and follow the routines and protocols set out in this and other appropriate policies.	To participate actively in lessons, activities, assemblies and tutor time.	To communicate openly with staff and engage in developing a partnership approach to their child's education and personal development; keeping the tutor/HSM aware of any circumstances which may affect their child's learning and behaviour.
To have high expectations of pupils; to praise readily and to	To take responsibility for their own conduct and for self-regulating their behaviour.	To keep pupils at home when they are ill and to provide the School with a written (or admonish privately (where possible/practicable).		email) explanation of the reasons for any absence.

To meet the educational, social and behavioural needs of pupils through an appropriate curriculum and individual support.	To do as reasonably instructed by all members of staff (teaching and non-teaching).	To take an active and supportive interest in their child's work and progress
To respond promptly and professionally to any communication about pupils from colleagues or parents/guardians.	To be accepting of others, irrespective of race, gender, religion, abilities, sexual orientation, age and background or any other protected characteristic. To be intolerant of intolerance.	To ensure that the School has accurate contact details for all parents/guardians.
To lead by example, being punctual for lessons, duties and activities, being prepared for lessons and setting the tone for a positive learning environment.	To sort out disagreements without resorting to physical/verbal aggression	To encourage resilience and robust mental health through use of the 7 Cs (See Appendix B)
To encourage resilience and robust mental health through use of the 7 Cs (see Appendix B).	To access help and support where needed.	To supporting the School in delivery of consistent follow up and sanctions; understanding that children make mistakes and benefit when adults are united in their response.
To ensure all rewards and sanctions are accurately logged onto the School MIS.	To respect property and not damage, take, or misuse the property of others or the School.	To maintain regular contact with the School through attendance at parent consultation evenings and through letters, reports, and telephone calls as appropriate
For more detail of expectations in specific staff roles, please see 'Support Systems for Staff'	To seek out positions of responsibility and carry out their duties well.

Aldenham Attributes and the School Ethos

Pupils at Aldenham should be valued and respected, educated in a secure and caring environment, and have their abilities and talents nurtured and developed to enable them to exceed their own expectations of their potential.

The creation of a positive ethos is essential to achieving this. A positive ethos is one in which:

- The pupils' confidence and self-esteem are promoted;
- They are encouraged to value one another; and
- They show a strong sense of belonging to the School as a community.

Where the ethos is right, pupils take a pride in their achievements and recognise the importance of high standards in their work and in their behaviour.

We want them to:

- Experience the wide variety of educational opportunities on offer at Aldenham;
- Be encouraged and supported to achieve high standards; and
- Have a daily experience of praise, reward and celebration.

At the same time, we want them to learn about their own responsibilities. They will be expected to live and work in accordance with the Aldenham core values. Aldenham encourages all staff to promote collectively an atmosphere of care and respect within the formal and informal life of the School community in which both the pupils and the staff feel secure, welcome and valued.

The Aldenham Attributes describe our vision for the personal development of our pupils. We believe they encompass the characteristics that provide the framework for a successful experience at the School and equip pupils to meet the challenges of life when they leave us. The Attributes support the School's inclusive vision that acknowledges every child is unique. At Aldenham, we aim to embrace the Aldenham Attributes as a strong foundation for a positive learning community, one that celebrates the strengths of every individual and values strong interpersonal relationships with peers and colleagues and the wider community beyond Aldenham.

The Attributes link directly to the core values which underpin the School's approach to behaviour:

RESPECT

- We will hold fast to our self-respect and respect for others, both within our community and in the world at large;
- We will treat people as we would want to be treated, listening to each other and creating a calm working environment; and
- We will respect our School environment and cherish our part in the Aldenham School community.

COURAGE

- We will be truthful and honest, knowing the difference between right and wrong and have the courage to act upon it;
- We will be honest to parents about what is happening at School; and
- We will work with determination and perseverance in all our learning to exceed our expectations of ourselves.

CO-OPERATION

- We will share things with others and put others before ourselves;
- We will have a positive attitude towards others, making sure everyone feels welcome, included and safe; and
- We will support our teachers in creating the best possible circumstances for learning

INDEPENDENCE

- I will self-regulate my own behaviour, engaging in learning with interest and enabling others to do so;
- I will be careful when loyalty to a friend might compromise honesty; and
- I will develop independence and resilience, in my academic studies, in my relationships and for my future life.

CURIOSITY

- We will engage with the moral issues and responsibilities that surround us at school, in our different nations and in the world at large;
- We will be curious about and tolerant of other viewpoints, seeking to understand and celebrate diversity; and
- We will be curious in learning new skills and embracing new knowledge.

ASPIRATION

- We set the highest standards for ourselves in our personal conduct;
- Wherever we are, we will aspire to be the best possible ambassadors for ourselves and Aldenham School; and,
- We will ensure everyone can work in surroundings which are calm, orderly and safe.

Aldenham has an ethos based on core values promoted through the Attributes and a commitment to:

- Developing young adults, who have the self- knowledge, skills and resilience to live healthily and safely, enjoying their learning, making positive contributions to the School and the community.
- A positive atmosphere based on a sense of community within the School and values which all its members share.
- A sense of collective responsibility among staff, and a commitment to the School by the pupils and their parents.
- Effective, well-prepared teaching, where expectations of the pupils are appropriately high, work is differentiated according to pupils' needs, all pupils are challenged and supported as necessary, and appropriate work is marked in line with School and department policies.
- A stimulating and suitably differentiated curriculum, which takes account of the needs and interests of the pupils and allows every pupil to make progress and experience success.
- Ensuring pupils' progress with effective monitoring, intervention and communication processes.
- Effective programmes which promote among pupils a sense of self-esteem and self-respect, respect for others, self-discipline and responsibility.
- Consistency in practice; in expectations, language, response, follow up, positive reinforcement, consequences, respect, models of emotional control, routines for behaviour and environment.

These commitments are held central in decision making at all levels, in the design of the curriculum and the structure of pastoral care. They are addressed daily throughout school life, including via assemblies and modelling from adults and senior pupils within the School community.

Sport and School Fixtures

The highest standards of behaviour are expected from pupils who are afforded the privilege of representing the School in sports teams. Pupils are expected to embody the Aldenham Attributes on the sports field, especially when visiting other schools.

Please also note that sports fixtures (including weekend fixtures) are compulsory for all those who are selected to represent the School. All pupils must understand this expectation before they take up a place at the School and will be reminded of it when appropriate.

Behaviour and Mental Health

Schools have a central role to play in enabling their pupils to be resilient and in supporting good mental health and wellbeing. Aldenham School takes this responsibility very seriously and works hard to promote good mental wellbeing for all pupils.

Our approach to behaviour is part of our whole school approach to mental health and wellbeing. Aldenham School aims to be a safe and affirming place for children where they can develop a sense of belonging and feel able to trust and talk openly with adults about their problems. Further details of the School's approach to mental health are detailed within the School's Pastoral Care Policy.

Appendix B of this policy contains detailed advice from Mental Health First Aid in promoting resilience and self-management.

Implementation of the Behaviour Policy

The Behaviour Policy is implemented via:

- The Curriculum
- School systems – Rewards and Sanctions
- Support systems for individual pupils
- Support systems for staff
- Support systems for parents
- Monitoring and Review

The Curriculum

At Aldenham, we teach pupils to understand our core values, explicitly through Life Matters (PSHE), in tutor time and assembly, but also in other subjects.

We believe that an appropriately structured curriculum and effective learning contribute to good behaviour. Thorough planning for the needs of individual pupils, the active involvement of pupils in their own learning and structured feedback all help to avoid the alienation and disaffection which can lie at the root of poor behaviour.

It follows that lessons should have clear objectives which are understood by the pupils and are differentiated to meet the needs of a range of abilities. Marking and record keeping can be used both as a supportive activity, providing feedback to the pupils on their progress and achievements and as a signal that the pupil's efforts are valued and progress matters.

School Systems – Rewards and Sanctions

The same considerate and inclusive behaviour is expected of all members of the School community, staff and pupils alike. At all levels we seek to affirm what is good and model what we expect, with everything we do designed to promote and acknowledge good behaviour rather than merely to deter anti-social behaviour. We recognise and reward pupils who go 'over and above' our standards.

Although there are tiered rewards, our staff understand that a quiet word of personal praise can be as effective as a larger, more public, reward. 'It is not what you give but the way that you give it that counts.' Staff are encouraged to 'catch pupils doing things right.' Verbal and written "descriptive praise" are regularly given for good work and behaviour.

Aims of the Reward System

- To reinforce good behaviour
- To acknowledge formally all contributions which go 'above and beyond' high standards of behaviour
- To allow pupils to use their good conduct to contribute to the success of their House as a community
- To formally acknowledge outstanding contributions to the life of the School
- To formally acknowledge outstanding work that goes significantly beyond what might be expected of a pupil
- To allow outstanding work and contributions to be recognised by tutors, HSMs and members of the SLT
- To allow effective tracking of a pupil's efforts and achievements in all areas of school life
- To form part of the 'big picture' of a pupil's conduct throughout their time in the School
- To promote a greater sense of self-esteem and pride in one's own achievements

The following rewards are used within the School community:

Praise	It is important not to underestimate the importance of simple recognition of pupils 'getting it right'. Teachers are encouraged to give their public attention to pupils showing good conduct. The use of praise in develops a positive atmosphere in the classroom and is the key to developing positive relationships, including with pupils who are hardest to reach. House and School assemblies can also be used to publicly praise pupils who have made a significant contribution, for example, to their sports team or as a member of a pupil committee.
Golds	The basic unit of reward is called a Gold. Golds are awarded for effort, achievement or citizenship. Good work and/or effort should be awarded a Gold. This is done by advising the pupil or marking on their work before entering the Gold onto the School MIS. Guidance about what a Gold should be awarded for is given in the posters which are displayed around School (see Appendix C). When a pupil achieves 20 Golds, or further multiples of 10, a letter of congratulation will be sent to parents from their tutor, HSM, the DHPC or Head of Senior School progressively. Golds are automatically tallied and totals flagged up to the tutor and HSM. Golds contribute towards the House Shield.
Platinums	These are awarded for conduct, effort of work that goes well above a Gold. This could include an extraordinary act of kindness or service to others, sustained excellent effort or achievement in the classroom or an act of significant bravery. Platinums must be ratified by a member of SLT before they are issued. They will be accompanied by a certificate.

Letters of commendation	Some departments have the policy of naming and rewarding a 'pupil of the month' and departments are encouraged to send home letters of commendation to pupils who make good progress, show consistent promise or make a special effort. The issuing of a letter is recorded on the MIS.
Effort Cups	Presented to pupils & Houses with the best scores. Book tokens may also be given to pupils as effort prizes and to the pupil who achieves the highest number of Golds in a term.
Visitation Day Prizes	Awarded for effort and attainment. There are also several awards for contributions to the life of the School, e.g. the Aldenham Attributes prizes.

Key principles of the sanctions system

- It should be the behaviour rather than the pupil that is sanctioned.
- The pupil must understand why any sanction is being applied – time must be given to explain the reasons for the sanction.
- The sanction must be proportionate to the offence.
- The sanction must be consistent with other sanctions applied to other pupils by other staff and over time. Any bespoke elements (sometimes necessary) are explained in explanatory notes in the record. The School MIS contains a record of all sanctions and is referred to by the HSMs and the DHPC in ensuring consistency.
- Extenuating circumstances may be taken into account in ensuring consistency but also equitability in the School's decision-making process. These could be related to pupils' individual needs (e.g. SEND), family circumstances or other reasons. HSMs are often influential in making such decisions as they have an overall view of their pupil's personal circumstances.
- It must be made clear what changes in behaviour are required to avoid future sanctions.
- Group sanctions should be avoided – they are unjust and breed resentment.
- Incidents of bullying and other forms of peer-on-peer abuse may require the involvement of the police and/or external safeguarding agencies.

Classroom Discipline – all staff are responsible for behaviour in their own classrooms and of the pupils generally around the School. Staff should not turn a blind 'eye' particularly on matters of dress or chewing gum.

The role of the tutor – tutors are responsible for day-to-day issues of punctuality and appearance.

Heads of Department – HoDs - are responsible for ensuring the work in their subject is suitable for all pupils. They are the first line of support for classroom problems and will contact parents as necessary. Pupils who need to be removed from a class as a last resort will work in the HoD's classroom in the first instance.

Housemaster/Housemistress – HSMs are responsible for more serious breaches of discipline and dress code, including for Sixth Formers. They will contact parents as necessary.

The DHPCC is responsible for more serious breaches of discipline such as bullying, persistent inappropriate behaviour or persistent low-level disruption to the learning of others across a range of subject areas.

The Head of Senior School and the Head of Foundation are responsible for most serious behaviour, likely to result in final warnings and exclusion, whether long term, temporary or permanent.

Aims of the Sanctions System

The aim of the sanctions system is twofold. First, sanctions place emphasis on the School's academic and behavioural expectations; and second, they ensure early communication with parents if such standards are not met. It also provides pupils with clear guidelines and encourages them to take ownership of their personal and academic progress. The following sanctions are used within the School community:

Warnings	Teachers are encouraged to have clear classroom routines and consistent boundaries. A pupil will be warned about their behaviour by restating the expectation in the first instance to give the pupil the opportunity to make a better behaviour choice. Staff should refer to the 'Procedures and support systems for staff' section for more details.
Blues	This is a mark given for poor work, or for low level disruption. This is done by advising the pupil or marking it on their work before entering the Blue onto the School MIS. Blues are automatically tallied and totals flagged up to the tutor and HSM. Blues remove points from the House Shield. Houses and departments have their own sanction systems for Blues. For example, in Martineau's/Woodrow's, four blues in a week normally means a Martineau's/Woodrow's detention. Blues can be used in conjunction with a classroom sanction. E.g. tidying up or staying behind for a few minutes if the lesson backs up to break or lunchtime (pupils should not be held back at the end of the day if they are in danger of missing their coach).
Chewing gum fines	Chewing gum is prohibited in school and its use carries a £3 fine, which is donated to the charity nominated by the Charity Committee. Non-payment of the fine leads to a Friday School detention, which will involve removing chewing gum from desks, but does not remove the fine. If three chewing gum fines are accrued in one half term, the pupil will be placed in a Friday School detention, regardless of whether or not the fines have been paid.
Mobile Phone Breach	Pupils' use of mobile phones is governed by the Mobile Phone Policy and Terms of Use. A breach of the Mobile Phone Policy will lead to a Blue being issued on iSAMS.
Departmental Sanctions	The encouragement of appropriate behaviour and the sanctions awarded for minor misdemeanours should be agreed at departmental level but in accordance with school rules and policy. What is appropriate in one department may not be in another. This sanction level is flexible in this regard.

This is the first level of sanction which always generates an official letter home to parents. In the first instance the sanction may be a 'Letter of Concern' which details the academic or behavioural issues. Some staff may set essays or reflective writing to be completed for the following day. In other cases, a 'Departmental Detention' will be issued which will run for up to 30 minutes during a lunchtime. These are administered by the relevant Head of Department. This level of sanction is also used by Houses.

School Detention (Friday)	These are held on Friday after school. Parents are given at least 24 hours' notice (in writing) of the detention. Please note that we expect parental support when we issue this sanction, and appreciate their cooperation in arranging transport home for their child from Friday detentions.
School Detention (Saturday)	This is a serious sanction and is automatically issued for certain misdemeanours such as truanting a lesson or PVS period. Saturday detentions are run on Saturday morning by the SLT or other senior staff and are (single) 90 minutes or 180 minutes (double) in length. Again, we expect parental support when we issue this sanction, and appreciate their cooperation in arranging transport for their child to and from a Saturday detention. There is always an opportunity for dialogue about the reasons for the detention and reflection about making better choices. Saturday detentions take precedence over all sport fixtures. Issue of a second Saturday detention starts to jeopardise the pupil's place in the School.
Temporary exclusion	Imposed by the DHPCC for serious offences. There are two levels: an internal suspension involving being withdrawn from lessons; and a higher sanction of external suspension (being sent home). The Head of Senior School is always consulted before an external suspension is issued.
Permanent exclusion	Only imposed by the Head of Foundation for the most serious offences, as referred to in the table below. In such cases the School has a very clear process for this level of sanction. After suitable investigations have taken place, a meeting will be led by the Head of Foundation, with the pupil and parents in attendance, which can lead to a balanced, evidence-based decision. If the decision is to permanently exclude a pupil from the School, the unprejudiced right of appeal to the governors will still exist.

The table below provides examples of behavioural incidents and appropriate levels of consequence.

Level	Behaviour	Sanction	Resolution
1	Disrupting the learning of others (minor) Talking/out of seat Lack of equipment in lessons Lack of effort/poor attitude to learning Minor uniform breach	Verbal warning	Conversation with teacher/HoD
2	Late to lesson without good reason (<5 mins) No/poor prep without good reason Littering Inappropriate language or swearing in conversation Breach of uniform rules (jewellery, hoodies, trainers, headphones, wrong kit etc.) Repetition of level 1 behaviour after warning Not ready to learn e.g. lack of device/charged device/digital pen for lessons. Minor misuse of Surface device in lesson	Blue	Conversation with the person who issued the Blue
2	Chewing gum	Chewing gum fine (£3 to charity)	Conversation with tutor
2	Wearing headphones Use of mobile phone in breach of mobile phone policy	Confiscation until the end of the day & Blue	Conversation with the person who issued the sanction
3	Repetition of level 2 behaviour No PE kit Rudeness to staff (minor- also level 4) Refusal to follow instructions (minor – also level 4) Lateness (> 5 mins) Failing department equipment check Failure to meet department or House expectations	Department or House detention/sanction	Reflective conversation with HOD/HSM during the detention
4	Repetition of level 3 behaviour Significant or repeated breach of uniform policy Persistent failure to meet School expectations Failure to sign in/out if arriving/leaving outside normal hours Missing Call whilst in School Non-payment of chewing gum fine Plagiarism of prep Inappropriate or hurtful behaviour Failure to complete a department or House sanction 10 Blues in a term Other inappropriate behaviour (including enabling or being complicit in a higher level offence) Rudeness to staff, disobedience, refusal to follow instructions Repeated low level disruptions	School detention 1 hour Friday evening	Reflective conversation with SLT member (if available) during the detention and/or a written reflective task

5	Repetition of level 4 behaviour Truancy from a lesson, tutor time, Chapel/Assembly, Games, Activities or a PVS (within School grounds) Failure to attend Friday detention Misbehaviour in Friday detention Deliberate defiance Deliberate act of cheating in a class assessment (eg use of phone)	SLT detention 1.5 hours Saturday morning	Reflective conversation with SLT member during the detention
6	Repetition of level 4 or 5 offence Dishonesty/lying to staff Misuse of IT or mobile phones (including filming or photographing without consent or permission of a member of staff) Fighting or aggressive behaviour Bullying incident (including online bullying – please see anti-bullying policy) Two Friday detentions in one half-term (in lieu of second Friday) Other inappropriate behaviour of a similar level (including enabling or being complicit in a higher level offence)	SLT detention 3 hours Saturday morning	Reflective conversation with SLT member during the detention
7	Repetition of level 5 or 6 offence including an accumulation of sanctions for lower level misdemeanours. Gross disobedience Cheating or plagiarism in an internal exam or on non-exam assessment (NEA)/coursework pre submission Swearing at or about a member of staff Serious inappropriate use of any electronic device (e.g. distributing videos or images of other pupils and/or staff without their consent) Persistent disruption of the learning of others Leaving School site during the day without permission Theft, graffiti, vandalism Other inappropriate behaviour of a similar level (including enabling or being complicit in a higher level offence)	Internal suspension (one day)	Formal interview between SLT member and pupil (ideally with HSM/tutor present) focused on strategies to avoid future poor behaviour before return to lessons is agreed

8	Repetition (or extreme case) of level 6 or 7 offence, including an accumulation of sanctions for lower level misdemeanours. Racist or homophobic abuse Having sexual relations on school premises (or during a school trip or other school-organised activity) Serious and/or persistent sexual harassment Assault or violent behaviour Continuation of bullying Making a malicious or deliberately invented allegation against a member of staff, pupil or the School/Foundation. Serious inappropriate use of any electronic device (e.g. producing and distributing videos or images of other pupils and/or staff without their consent) Theft All smoking or vaping offences (min. 2 day external suspension). For example: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The act of smoking or vaping in School. • Possession of smoking or vaping related materials in School. • Being in the presence of others who are smoking or vaping. Abuse of alcohol or drugs (see Smoking, Alcohol and Misuse of Drugs Policy) Possession of offensive weapons or other prohibited items Actions which endanger the safety of others Bringing the School's name into disrepute Vandalism or wilful damage to school property Other inappropriate behaviour of a similar level (including enabling or being complicit in a higher level offence) Very challenging behaviour towards a member of staff or harassment of a member of staff either in or out of school	External suspension (varying lengths)	Formal interview between SLT member and pupil and parent(s) (with HSM/tutor present) focused on strategies to avoid future poor behaviour before return to School is agreed
9	Repetition or extreme case of level 8 offence Provision, supply, sale or distribution of drugs, tobacco, vaping liquids and other vaping paraphernalia, legal highs or other related substances Use of offensive weapons Other inappropriate behaviour of a similar level	Permanent exclusion	The School will make a reasonable attempt to facilitate transition to a new school

Information for pupils receiving sanctions

If pupils are unsure why a sanction or reprimand has been issued then they should politely ask why. If a pupil feels they have been treated unfairly, they should say so politely to the teacher, tutor or HSM. They will help to resolve the situation so there is clarity as to why the sanction has been imposed.

If concern remains, the pupil must say so or ask their parents to contact the School. There is a clear procedure for dealing with any complaints or concerns pupils may have. Please see Appendix A - Complaints Procedure for Pupils.

Moving forward

In general, our approach will be to encourage pupils to regard the experience of being sanctioned as an opportunity to learn. Once the punishment has been served the School's aim will be to put the incident behind the pupil and to identify a positive way forward, monitoring and giving support if necessary.

Pupils are likely to behave and learn better if they feel responsible for their own learning, behaviour and capacity to succeed. Target setting with the aid of the tutor, through the Progress review and Target setting process, for instance, is an important aspect of the help made available to all pupils.

Pastoral dimension

Usually when a pupil misbehaves there are other underlying factors to explore and try to understand. Therefore, our response needs always to be pastoral as well as disciplinary. However, punishment takes place to educate both the person who has acted wrongly and the rest of the community. Therefore, understanding of the individual has to be combined with an awareness that the community as a whole needs to understand what happens when breaches of the rules take place.

If a pupil is in trouble regularly, the HSM or DHPCC will initiate some kind of review or investigation. This might simply take the form of informal conversations with the pupil and those who know her/him, or it might involve a more formal case conference including everyone involved. A behaviour contract could be used. These are agreements between the pupil and the School, always involving the parents. They are fixed term contracts and allow pupils to focus on getting their behaviour correct. They are reviewed regularly.

Pupil contracts

To support a pupil found guilty of serious misconduct, the pupil may be encouraged to sign a Pupil Contract setting out the required improvements in his behaviour and/or work. Breach of such a contract normally results in permanent exclusion. As part of this support, he/she will also be encouraged to see the School Counselling Manager.

Relationships between pupils

The School recognises that some pupils may seek to engage in romantic relationships with one another. However, such relationships should be conducted with decorum and any public display of affection which could cause embarrassment or offence to another member of the Aldenham community or visitor will result in a sanction. Under no circumstances are pupils to engage in sexual relations on the School site (or on a residential trip or other school-organised activity), even if they are both over the legal age of consent.

Any relationship between pupils which is viewed as coercive (even if is consensual) will be treated in line with the guidance in KCSIE, Part Five.

Special Educational Needs and Behavioural Problems

Pupils identified as having special educational needs with regard to behaviour should be given support and, where appropriate, should have internal interventions put in place or be provided with support in accessing help from external agencies (educational psychologists, etc.).

Internal interventions are classified into three key groups, as follows:

- Interventions to directly target behaviour, such as behaviour repair programmes which get pupils to look at how they have behaved and what other choices they could have made. School detentions are used as part of this process.
- Interventions to tackle practical causes of poor behaviour. Most commonly these are academic interventions, which aim to support pupils to catch up so that they may re-engage with their learning.
- Interventions which seek out deeper causes, such as counselling. Meeting parents and carers to discuss behaviour can sometimes also fall under this heading if any problems at home are revealed and discussed.

Malicious allegations against staff

Where a pupil makes an accusation against a member of staff and the accusation is shown to have been deliberately invented or malicious, the Headmaster will consider whether to take disciplinary action in accordance with this policy.

Where a parent has made a deliberately invented or malicious allegation, the Headmaster will consider whether to require that parent to withdraw their child or children from the School on the basis that they have treated the School or a member of staff unreasonably.

In accordance with the DfE's KCSIE guidance, the School will consider a malicious allegation to be one where, on the balance of probabilities, there has been a deliberate act to deceive and the allegation is entirely false.

Principles for creating a positive learning environment

- Consistent language; consistent response: Referring to the simple and clear classroom expectations reflected in all conversations about behaviour.
- Consistent follow up: Ensuring 'certainty' at the classroom, department and senior management level. Never passing problems up the line, teachers taking responsibility for behaviour interventions, seeking support but never delegating.
- Consistent positive reinforcement: Routine procedures for reinforcing, encouraging and celebrating appropriate behaviour.
- Consistent consequences: Defined, agreed and applied at the classroom level as well as established structures for more serious behaviours.
- Consistent, simple rules/agreements/expectations
- Consistent respect from the adults: Even in the face of disrespectful learners!
- Consistent models of emotional control: Emotional restraint that is modelled and not just taught, teachers as role models for learning.
- Consistently reinforced routines for behaviour around the site: In classrooms, around the site, at reception.

Procedure for managing pupils' problems or concerns

Good behaviour often is a by-product of good relationships between staff and pupils. Staff should be open to pupils who may wish to discuss their problems, concerns or complaints.

Normally the first port of call will be the pupil's tutor but it may also be an academic teacher or any other member of teaching/non-teaching staff who the pupil feels comfortable talking to. It is important that staff take any issue raised seriously, no matter how insignificant it might appear from an adult perspective. For the child, the issue might be of great importance and it is important that it is not dismissed summarily without giving due consideration to its importance from the child's point of view.

If a pupil raises serious concerns relating to abuse, safeguarding procedures need to be followed. For more information, please refer to the Aldenham School Safeguarding policies.

Support systems for parents

At Aldenham, we try to maintain an open and close relationship with parents. Parents are always welcome to visit or telephone to discuss any relevant issues. In the first instance, parents should contact the pupil's tutor or HSM to raise their concerns; thereafter they should contact the DHPC.

It is general policy to bring all incidents of serious bad behaviour to the notice of parents. Parents will be notified of less serious incidents if punishment will entail after School detention or if on general welfare grounds it is judged appropriate by staff to inform or discuss the issue with the parent. A simple example of this would be informing parents of non-completion of homework through recording the issue of a Blue which can automatically be seen by parents on their child's portal.

Monitoring and review

It is the responsibility of Heads of Departments to discuss the implementation of the behaviour policy on a regular basis in departmental meetings, in order to ensure that it is uniformly applied. This should focus on both rewards and sanctions.

Any concerns with implementation of the procedure should first be raised with the DHPC so that review can occur. Otherwise, this policy will be reviewed annually by the DHPC.

Appendix A - Complaints procedure for pupils

This procedure is designed for pupils to express and seek redress for treatment which they feel is unfair or unreasonable. This could include (but is not limited to):

- A sanction they feel has been unfairly administered
- A member of staff whose attitude towards you seems consistently unfair
- The way you have been treated in an investigation which has had to be conducted in a disciplinary matter

The procedure aims to balance the rights of pupils and the support they may need with the rights of the School, staff and other pupils. Every pupil at Aldenham School has the right to be treated fairly by his or her fellow pupils and by members of staff.

1. What if I am unhappy about something?

If you feel unfairly treated by a member of staff you may approach them directly, taking another pupil or member of staff with you if you wish. Explain politely but clearly what has dissatisfied you. It may be that through discussion with the member of staff you will obtain an answer or reach an agreement which satisfies you. That is the best way to resolve most concerns.

If you do not wish to approach the member of staff directly, you can approach any other member of staff with whom you may discuss the matter and they may give you advice or act as an intermediary on your behalf talking to the member of staff with whom you are in disagreement. Remember, you can always speak to your tutor/HSM if you are unhappy or dissatisfied.

2. What can I do if I'm still not happy?

If you are not satisfied after these discussions, or with what happens as a result of these discussions, you are free to make a complaint.

You may make a complaint according to the procedure below without contacting the person about whom you wish to make a complaint or another member of staff.

3. How do I make a complaint?

If you wish to make a complaint, you should do this in writing to the Head of Senior School, the DHPC or to your HSM. You should say in your letter/email what has dissatisfied you. You may include any details you think are relevant. The Head of Senior School, the DHPC or your HSM may ask you or others to make something clearer. You do not have to tell a teacher something if you do not want to.

4. What happens then?

The relevant member of staff will then follow up your complaint by speaking to the member of staff or members of staff over whose actions you are dissatisfied. All the details of what you have said will be carefully investigated.

5. How long will it take?

The relevant member of staff will ask to see you within 2 working school days of when you make your complaint. They will tell you what action, if any, they intend to take as a result of your complaint.

6. What if I am not happy with the outcome?

If you are not happy with the outcome of your complaint you may ask them to investigate matters differently or again. Alternatively, you may wish to take your complaint to the Headmaster.

7. What if I am not happy with what the Headmaster says?

If at this stage you are still unhappy with the result of your complaint, you may telephone the School counsellor or the 'independent adult listener', whose telephone number is situated on all House noticeboards. The independent adult is available to listen carefully and discuss matters with any pupil who is unhappy about the outcome of a complaint. If he considers that you have not been fairly dealt with, he will speak to the Head of Senior School/Headmaster on your behalf.

8. Will the member of staff I complain about know I have complained?

When you complain about a member of staff, you do not have to tell the member of staff directly that you have made a complaint about them. However, the Head of Senior School or the DHPC may need to tell the person you are complaining about in order to investigate things properly.

9. What will other people say if I decide to complain?

Every pupil at Aldenham School has the right to use this complaints procedure. As a member of the School, you will not in any way be criticised if you use the complaints procedure fairly and genuinely. It is your right to do so and your right to have your worries followed up.

Appendix B - Self-management and resilience

(EXTRACT FROM YOUTH MENTAL HEALTH FIRST AID)

RESILIENCE

We tend to idealise childhood as a carefree time, but youth alone offers no shield against the emotional hurts and traumas many children and young people face, Children and young people can be asked to deal with problems ranging from adapting to a new classroom to bullying by classmates or even abuse at home. Add to that the uncertainties that are part of growing up, and childhood can be anything but carefree. The ability to thrive despite these challenges arises from the skills of resilience.

Resilience is ‘... a complex and multifaceted construct, referring to a person’s capacity to handle environmental difficulties, demands and high pressure without experiencing negative effects’ (Kinman and Grant, 2011).

The good news is that resilience skills can be learned.

Building resilience - the ability to adapt to adversity, trauma, tragedy, threats or even significant sources of stress - can help our children manage stress and feelings of anxiety and uncertainty. However, being resilient does not mean that children won’t experience difficulty or distress. Emotional pain and sadness are common when we have suffered major trauma or personal loss, or even when we hear of someone else’s loss or trauma. Dr. Ginsburg has identified seven “C”s of resilience, recognising that “resilience isn’t a simple, one-part entity.” Adults can use these guidelines to help children recognise their abilities and inner resources.

COMPETENCE

Competence describes the feeling of knowing that you can handle a situation effectively. We can help the development of competence by:

- Helping children focus on individual strengths
- Focusing any identified mistakes on specific incidents
- Empowering children to make decisions
- Being careful that your desire to protect the child doesn’t mistakenly send a message that you don’t think he or she is competent in handling situations
- Recognising the competencies of siblings individually and avoiding comparisons.

CONFIDENCE

A child’s belief in his own abilities is derived from competence. Build confidence by:

- Focusing on the best in each child so that he or she can see that as well
- Clearly expressing the best qualities, such as fairness, integrity, persistence, and kindness
- Recognising when he or she has done well
- Praising honestly about specific achievements instead of giving; diffuse, general praise that may lack authenticity
- Not pushing the child to take on more that he or she can realistically handle.

CONNECTION

Developing close ties to family and community creates a solid sense of security that helps lead to strong values and prevents alternative destructive paths to love and attention. You can help the child connect with others by:

- Building a sense of physical safety and emotional security

- Allowing the expression of all emotions, so that children will feel comfortable reaching out during difficult times
- Addressing conflict openly to resolve problems
- Creating a common area where they can share time (not necessarily TV time)
- Fostering healthy relationships that will reinforce positive messages.

CHARACTER

Children need to develop a solid set of morals and values to determine right from wrong and to demonstrate a caring attitude toward others. To strengthen a child's character, start by:

- Demonstrating how behaviours affect others
- Helping the child recognise himself or herself as a caring person
- Demonstrating the importance of community
- Encouraging the development of spirituality
- Avoiding racist or hateful statements or stereotypes.

CONTRIBUTION

Children need to realise that the world is a better place because they are in it. Understanding the importance of personal contribution can serve as a source of purpose and motivation. Teach children how to contribute by:

- Communicating to children that many people in the world do not have what they need
- Stressing the importance of serving others by modelling generosity
- Creating opportunities for each child to contribute in some specific way.

COPING

Learning to cope effectively with stress will help a child be better prepared to overcome life's challenges. Positive coping lessons include:

- Modelling positive coping strategies on a consistent basis.
- Guiding the child to develop positive and effective coping strategies
- Realising that telling him or her to stop the negative behaviour will not be effective
- Understanding that many risky behaviours are attempts to alleviate the stress and pain in children's' daily lives
- Not condemning the child for negative behaviours and, potentially, increasing his or her sense of shame.

CONTROL

Children who realise that they can control the outcomes of their decisions are more likely to realise that they have the ability to bounce back. The child's understanding that he or she can make a difference further promotes competence and confidence. You can try to empower the child by:

- Helping the child to understand that life's events are not purely random and that most things that happen are the result of another individual's choices and actions
- Learning that discipline is about teaching, not punishing or controlling; using discipline to help the child to understand that his actions produce certain consequences.

IN SUMMARY

- Children need to know that there is an adult in their life who believes in them and loves them unconditionally.
- Children will live "up" or "down" to our expectations.

There is no simple answer to guarantee resilience in every situation. But we can challenge ourselves to help our children develop the ability to negotiate their own challenges and to be more resilient, more capable, and happier.

TOP TIPS FOR BUILDING RESILIENCE IN YOUNG PEOPLE

Make connections

Teach young people how to make friends, including the skill of empathy, of feeling another's pain. Encourage them to be a friend in order to get friends. Build a strong family network to support the young person through his or her inevitable disappointments and hurts. At school, watch to make sure that one young person is not being isolated. Connecting with people provides social support and strengthens resilience. Some find comfort in connecting with a higher power, whether through organised religion or privately.

Help them to help others

Young people who may feel helpless can be empowered by helping others. Engage the young person in age-appropriate volunteer work, or ask for assistance yourself with some tasks that he or she can master. At school, brainstorm with young people about ways they can help others.

Maintain a daily routine

Sticking to a routine can be comforting to young people, especially younger children who crave structure in their lives. Encourage young people to develop their own routines.

Take a break

While it is important to stick to routines, endlessly worrying about adhering to schedules can be counter-productive. Teach your child how to focus on something besides what is worrying him or her. Be aware of what your child is exposed to that can be troubling, whether it be news, the internet or overheard conversations, and make sure your child takes a break from those things if they trouble her. Although schools are being held accountable for performance on standardised tests, build in unstructured time during the School day to allow children to be creative.

Teach self-care and concrete skills

Make yourself a good example, and teach young people the importance of making time to eat properly, exercise and rest. Make sure the young person has time to have fun, and make sure that the young person has not scheduled every moment of his or her life with no "downtime" to relax. Caring for oneself and even having fun will help the young person stay balanced and better deal with stressful times.

Move towards your goals

Teach young people to set reasonable goals and then to move toward them one step at a time. Moving towards that goal - even if it's a tiny step - and receiving praise for doing so will focus the young person on what he or she has accomplished rather than on what hasn't been accomplished, and can help build the resilience to move forward in the face of challenges. At school, break down large assignments into small, achievable goals for younger children, and for older children, acknowledge accomplishments on the way to larger goals.

Nurture a positive self-view, help them manage their emotions and model resiliency

Help the young person remember ways that he or she has successfully handled hardships in the past and then help them understand that these past challenges help them build the strength to handle future challenges. Help the young person learn to trust themselves, to solve problems and make appropriate decisions. Teach the young person to see the humour in life, and the ability to laugh at oneself. At school, help young people see how their individual accomplishments contribute to the wellbeing of the class as a whole.

Emotional management is key in resilience. Teach young people that all emotions are OK, including 'negative' emotions. It is OK to feel angry, sad or anxious at times. Also, teach them that after feeling their feeling, they need to think through what they are going to do next.

Children learn very quickly which powerful emotions get them what they want. Adults have to learn how to handle the emotions, too. If a child throws a tantrum, be clear about what behaviour is appropriate (and appropriate.) You might say, "I'm sorry we're not going to get ice cream, but this behaviour is unacceptable".

Of course, children also learn from observing adults behaviour. Try to lead by example and be calm and consistent. You cannot say to a child you want them to control their emotions, while you yourself are not controlling your emotions. It is also important to be honest when we make mistakes, so admit it when this happens. "I really messed up. I'm sorry I handled that poorly. Let's talk about a different way to handle that in the future".

Resilience helps young people navigate the inevitable trials, tribulations and triumphs of childhood and adolescence. Resilient children also become resilient adults, able to survive and thrive in the face of life's unavoidable stressors.

Avoid catastrophising - keep perspective and maintain a hopeful outlook

Adults need to pay attention to what they say to young people directly and what is said when they are around. Anxious adults, in particular, may use catastrophising language around young people. For instance, instead of saying "It's really important for you to learn how to swim," they might say, "It's really important for you to learn how to swim because it'd be devastating to me if you drowned".

Even when a young person is facing painful events, help them look at the situation in a broader context and keep a long-term perspective. Although the young person may be too young to consider a long-term view on their own, help them see that there is a future beyond the current situation and that the future can be positive. An optimistic and hopeful outlook enables the young person to see the good things in life and keep going even in the hardest times. In school, use history to show that life moves on after bad events.

Let young people make mistakes and look for opportunities for self-discovery

"Failure is not the end of the world. (It's the) place you get to when you work out what to do next". Letting young people make mistakes is sometimes hard for adults, but it helps young people learn how to fix mistakes and make better decisions next time.

If a young person has an assignment, anxious or overprotective adults usually want to make sure the project is perfect, even if their young person has no interest in doing it in the first place. But it is important to let young people see the consequences of their actions.

Tough times are often the times when we learn the most about ourselves. Help the young person take a look at now whatever they are facing can teach them "what they are made of". At school, consider leading discussions around what each pupil has learned after facing and dealing with a difficult situation.

Accept that change is part of living

Change often can be frightening for young people. Help the young person see that change is part of life and new goals can replace goals that have become unattainable. In school, point out how pupils have changed as they moved up in year levels and discuss how that change has had an impact on the pupils.

Don't accommodate every need

Whenever we try to provide certainty and comfort, we can get in the way of young people being able to develop their own problem-solving and mastery. (Overprotecting children only fuels their anxiety.) Here are two real life examples.

A child gets out of school at 3.15pm but they worry about their parent picking them up on time. So the parent arrives an hour earlier and parks by their child's classroom so they can see the parent is there.

In another example, parents let their seven year-old sleep on a mattress on the floor in their bedroom because they are too uncomfortable to sleep in their own room.

Avoid eliminating all risk

Naturally, we all want to keep young people safe, but elimination all risk deprives young people of learning resilience skills. In one real life example of a family, the children are not allowed to eat when the parents are not home, because there is a risk they might choke on their food. The key is to allow appropriate risks and teach our young people essential skills by starting these at a younger age, giving young people age-appropriate freedom helps them learn their own limits.

Teach problem-solving

Let us say a child wants to go to friend's house to have a sleepover, but they are nervous about being away from home. An anxious adult might say "Well, then there's no reason for you to go". But a better approach is to normalise the child's nervousness, and help them work out how to navigate being homesick. So you might ask the young person how they can practice getting used to being away from home.

When a young person is anxious about their first exam, it may be useful to brainstorm strategies, including how they could manage their time and schedule in order to study for the exam.

In other words, engage the young person in working out how they can handle challenges. Give them the opportunity, over and over, "to figure out what works and what doesn't".

Avoid "why" questions

"Why" questions aren't helpful in promoting problem-solving. Ask "how" questions instead.
